Great Job Opportunities in the Hudson Valley

There are several manufacturing companies in the Hudson Valley currently looking for new employees in a variety of fields and with various levels of skills and qualifications. The Council of Industry, in response to this growing need among their 135 manufacturing members, has added a Job Opportunities section to their website, www.councilofindustry.org.

On the Council's Job Opportunities pages, individuals can find listings of several different jobs ranging from plant manager, sales representative, product design engineer, or even machine operator. Each listing includes a link to the company's website as well as a contact for interested parties to send resumes to.

Manufacturing is an industry that spans a huge range of skill levels and offers great opportunities for education and advancement. According to Council of Industry Executive Vice President, Harold King, "Manufacturing jobs generally come with good benefits and pay higher than average wages. In fact despite some of the headlines about manufacturing downsizing, there are many local firms with great prospects who are in need of good people."

COUNCIL OF INDUSTRY OF SOUTHEASTERN NEW YORK

The Council of Industry hopes to reach those with an industrial/manufacturing background as well as those just starting out. The result, as one Council board member explained, will hopefully keep jobs and the people who want to work at them here in the Hudson Valley.
