Hi-Tech Packaging and EZ Store & Ship are two rather different companies under one roof and are an excellent example of using resources to the fullest. Hi-Tech Packaging was started in 1984 by three partners as a poly sleeve label manufacturer. EZ Store & Ship was conceived only about a year ago when one of the partners suggested that the company utilize their abundant warehouse space and daily shipments as an additional revenue source. EZ Store & Ship will stockpile and inventory goods for a customer company and arrange shipments of the merchandise as needed.

Hi –Tech Packaging produces polyethylene sleeve labels which can be applied to products manually or with automatic machinery. These sleeves are recyclable and fit snugly on the product without the use of heat to shrink it or chemical glues to adhere it. Hi – Tech Packaging prides itself on superior customer service and has a design and engineering department that will work with companies to provide a label that meets their needs. The sleeves can fit a wide variety of products and can be printed in up to ten colors adding what Hi-Tech Packaging calls “Buy Me Power” to a company’s product. These labels are able to stand up to liquids, shipping and adverse conditions far better than paper labels can and are compact, taking up less space than a decorated container does.

Hi –Tech Packaging’s warehouse in Garnerville, NY was once a textile plant and has more space than the company currently needs. Add to this abundance of space, the fact that Hi-Tech is shipping poly sleeves to customers across the country daily and viola, EZ Store & Ship.

Companies that are in need of warehouse space can contract EZ Store & Ship to house their products, keep track of inventory and pull and ship deliveries. EZ Store & Ship is flexible and can even meet some fulfillment needs. Companies that utilize this service are able to free up space in their own buildings as well as decrease or eliminate their inventory and shipping department.

Both EZ Store & Ship and Hi-Tech Packaging make every effort to provide their customer with great service. They are flexible and willing to go that extra mile.
